

Adverbs “ещё” and “уже”

Time in the Russian language is described with the help of the adverbs ещё and уже.

The adverb ещё can mean that:

- a process has not started yet;
- the desired result has not been achieved so far;
- an action which was to have finished at the moment of speech is still going on.

— У тебя есть машина?

— Ещё нет.

“Do you have a car?”

“No, not yet.”

— Он работает?

— Нет, он ещё студент.

“Does he work?”

“No, he is still a student.”

— Ольга отдыхает?

— Нет, она ещё работает.

“Is Olga resting?”

“No, she is still working.”

— Ты сейчас обедаешь?

— Ещё нет, я работаю.

“Are you having lunch?”

“No, not yet. I am working.”

The adverb уже can mean that:

- a process has finished;
- the result has been achieved;
- there is already another action under way at the moment of speech.

— У тебя есть машина?

— Да, уже есть!

“Do you have a car?”

“Yes, I have one already!”

— Он студент?

— Нет, он уже работает.

“Is he a student?”

“No, he is already working.”

— Ольга отдыхает?

— Да, она уже отдыхает.

“Is Olga resting?”

“Yes, she is already resting.”

— Ты сейчас обедаешь?

— Нет, я уже работаю. обед уже закончился

“Are you having lunch?”

“No, I am already working.” lunch is over